RIO GRANDE TO REDUCE EXPENSE

Salt Lake, April 11.—Instructions are said to have been issued from New York city to officials of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company to curtail the lettering of all important contracts that may be under consideration, and to purchase no more supplies than may be necessary for the safe handling of the railroad's business until further orders and instructions are issued by the main offices of the company in New York city.

While local railroad officials decline to discuss the matter further than to say they know nothing of the supposed order or its significance, it has been issued, the opinion is current that important developments may be expected within the next few days, and that this order, if it has been issued, is a forerunner of announcements of an important character.

Rumors are current in New York, according to the Wall Street Journal, generally considered a reliable authority on financial matters, that Edwin Hawley is conducting negotiations to secure control of the Denver & Rio Grande. It also confirms the statement that was recently made that control of the road had passed from the hands in which it was originally held in recent stock manipulations.

SHORT LINE TO MAKE CHANGES

Salt Lake, April 11.—A party of engineers left Salt Lake City this morning for Cache valley, on the Oregon Short Line railroad, to begin surveys for the improvement and reconstruction of the Cache valley branch of that road, according to the officials of the general offices. The corps of engineers will run new lines where necessary, and will eliminate, as far as possible, the heavy grades that are encountered on the present line.

The original Cache valley line was constructed under the direction of Brigham Young, and was known as the Utah Central. The line has many heavy grades and curves. These grades will be overcome wherever possible, and the new line will eliminate many curves.

No towns now on the road will be cut off, but the improvements suggested by the engineers may result in shortening the line considerably and will make it easier to operate to the better satisfaction of the traveling public.

When the engineering corps has reported the line is to be relaid throughout with heavier steel and the roadbed will be improved throughout its length. It is expected that the work of reconstruction will be well under way soon and will be closed before the close of summer.

"The traffic on the Cache valley line is growing steadily as the towns and the country are being developed," said an official of the Short Line this morning, "and we want to be prepared to even greater growth. We anticipate a large increase in both freight and passenger traffic, and for that reason want to put it in the best shape possible."

VANDAL TRACED THROUGH CARD

SALT LAKE, April 11.—In the office of Chief of Detectives George A. Sheets this morning, H. A. Lund, 19 years old, and his cousin, P. G. Lund, 20 years old, made a complete confession as their vandalism at the Westminister Presbyterian college, Thirteenth East and Eleventh South streets last Monday night, when property valued at more than $1800 was destroyed.

The only excuse the boys gave for working destruction at the school was that they were drunk and didn't know exactly what they were doing.

Without the least sign of nervousness, the Lund cousins looked Chief Sheets squarely in the eyes and made a clean breast of the whole affair. They were taken to the city jail and locked up.

H. A. Lund lives at 1066 Emerson avenue. He was arrested late Saturday night by Special Policeman Ed Mitchell on East South Temple street after he had walked past the Brigham street pharmacy several times and had tried the door of the store, which had been locked up for the night.

Disconnected Story. At the police station Lund told a disconnected story. He said that while walking on Brigham street at night he had been a "whim" of his and that he was doing it while waiting for his pal to take a girl from a telephone office. He said he was to meet his friend at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Lund answered to the description given to the lone highwayman. A hammerless revolver, fully loaded, was found in his possession, as well as several pass keys, screw drivers, wrenches and tweezers.

When Lieutenant Richard Shannon asked Lund his name the boy said: "Here's my card."

He threw a card printed as follows upon the lieutenant's desk: H. A. LUND. P. G. LUND. 1066 Emerson Ave. 1190 Princeton Ave. Ind. 1044.

EXPERT UNION SHINGLERS. Moderate prices. Bids given. Work Guaranteed. Contracts taken. "Well," said Lieutenant Shannon, "I'll keep your card for future reference. You don't look good to us, and we'll have to lock you up."

Card Was Clue. The card left by Lund was similar to one found in one of the buildings at Westminster college last Tuesday morning, and was instrumental in bringing about the arrest of the other Lund boy this morning and the subsequent confession.

P. G. Lund, arrested by Detective George Chase this morning, was shingling a house on Laird avenue when the officer took him in charge.

ACTIVE SPASM IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, April 11.—There was a sudden spasm of activity in the stock market today on the announcement of a reassignment for argument before the supreme court of the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases. The buying of stocks was hurried and urgent and at rapidly advancing quotations. That it came largely from uncovered shorts was obvious, the professional bears having sold stocks in the early dealings on a rumor that a decision adverse to the American Tobacco company would be handed down today. This mood of the speculation had been aggravated by the speech of the attorney general in Chicago Saturday night and by the intention there announced to extend the scope of government prosecutions of corporations to the bituminous coal combination, and, inferentially, to others.

There was the additional consideration that the re-opening of the two leading anti-trust cases implied a balance of opinion in the court itself that left the members unsatisfied to promulgate a decision in cases of such wide scope and importance. The delay which must now occur in reaching a final decision in the cases was accepted as a measure of relief from the condition of suspense, which the weekly expectation of a possible decision has held over the stock market. For those who have held that the immediate suspension of this question has been a repressive influence in enterprise, the changed condition was regarded as a relief. Bidding for stocks to test the market revealed a small flowing supply offering. Interest rates for time loans were advanced again and call loans started the week at 3 1/4 per cent.

The tone of the bond market continued irregular, but there was some improvement at some points. Total sales, par value, $2,275,000; United States bonds unchanged on call.

ORE SIGNS IN ELY CENTENNIAL TUNNEL

SALT LAKE, April 11.—Reports received locally from the management of the Ely Centennial at Ely are to the effect that from present indications the ore in the tunnel will be encountered somewhat sooner than was at first anticipated. During the past few days the workmen have entered a dolomite formation showing a quartz stratification which is highly mineralized, and mining men who have recently visited the mine express the opinion that ore is likely to make at anytime, even though the values were not expected at this point. The tunnel is in about 570 feet, and it was expected that it would be necessary to reach the $50-foot point at least before any of the ore bearing fissures were encountered. It has been shown, however, in the course of the work that these fissures have a considerable dip, and now it would not be surprising, it is said, if the ore was found within the next fifty or one hundred feet.

Splendid indications are showing also, in the shaft just above the tunnel, and samples of native copper and malachite have been taken from the shaft workings and made into souvenirs of the property. A piece of this native copper was displayed in this city recently by Harry B. Cole, upon his return from a visit in Ely. Mr. Cole is now in New York City in conference with Samuel Newhouse on business pertaining to the future of Ely Centennial, which is soon to be listed on the eastern markets.

Centennial management expects to have the property on a regularly producing basis by July 1.

PROVO LIQUOR CASE WILL BE REOPENED

PROVO, April 11.—Thomas Holladay, convicted on April 2 of selling liquor in violation of the city ordinances, was granted a new trial this morning in the justice court. He was convicted largely on the testimony of Roger Coulthurst and F. R. Muth, Salt Lake detectives. In connection with the application for a new trial an affidavit was filed by Coulthurst declaring that he had not visited Holladay's place on March 18, nor on any other day, and that he believed that Muth had never visited the place and bought liquor, as he had sworn he had.

UPWARD TENDENCY IN MINE STOCKS

Central held the stage as favorite performer, opening on sales at 14 cents, the price advancing as the trading progressed to the 17 cent mark, and selling as high as 17 1/2 cents, buyer, on the open board. Good reports continue to come from the property of the company, and local traders express a willingness to "take a chance" in anything in the Tintic district that looks good.

From Blossom in spite of the rather unfavorable reports on the gold contents of the ore recently shipped, held up well, the sale price fluctuating between $1.05 and $1.10. Nevada Hills continued strong as a result of the merger talk and sold from 55 cents up to 59 cents. Lower Mammoth dropped from 51 cents to 49 1/2 cents during the trading, and Columbus Consolidated at 30 cents and Colorado at 85 cents were not much in demand.

NORTHWEST SHERIFFS WILL HOLD MEETING

SALT LAKE, April 11.—The date for holding the convention of sheriffs of the intermountain country has been fixed at June 15 in Salt Lake City, according to Sheriff Joseph C. Sharp, who received a letter to that effect from the president of the Sheriffs' association, Sheriff C. W. Dyer of Twin Falls, Ida. Sheriff Sharp has been waiting for completion of the new jail before intimating to the association what date would be convenient to receive his visitors. It is now certain that the date will be ready to show to the visitors June 15.

Sheriff Sharp expects fully 400 peace officers from Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming and Utah, which states are embraced in the association. The purpose of the body are a general exchange of ideas and perfection of methods.

RESERVATION LANDS FOR HIGHEST BIDDERS

SALT LAKE, April 11.—Announcement has been made that a large tract of inherited and non-competent Indian lands in the limits of the jurisdiction of the Utah and Ouray agency at Whiterock, Utah, are offered for sale under the act of May 27, 1902. The ground will be sold by auction, bids being sent to the agency at Whiterock and the highest bidder on each piece of ground will get the title. Sealed bids will be received up to 12 o'clock noon, May 25. The sealed envelopes must be marked, "Bid on Indian land," to be opened May 25, 1910. The bid must be accompanied by a check for 25 per cent of the amount offered for each block of ground and the purchaser must be prepared to dig up the balance within thirty days of the time the bids are opened. due to heart failure, probably caused by excessive drinking. The body was taken to O'Donnell's undertaking establishment. It is believed that the old man had lived in Salt Lake city for a long time, and an effort is being made to find his relatives, if he has any living.
